

Kerry Brown

CoachKerry@gmail.com,
250-658-1904

I began my artistic exploration late in life and derive immense pleasure in the creative process as I experiment with different styles and processes. When I am painting, I am transported to another space and time.

My father was an artist, exploring over his life many mediums and subjects. From Japanese watercolour, native beadwork and carving to precious and semi-precious jewelry design and creation, he was and continues to be my inspiration.

I derive my inspiration from my passion for travel and the unique vignettes I discover while exploring. I am also very appreciative and inspired by my fellow artists who everyday have me see this amazing and diverse world through their eyes.

